Mr. Plant Continues.

Mr. Plant Continues.

The commission convened promptly at 11 o'clock, and Mr. Braxton continued his cross-examination of Mr. A. H. Plant, comptroller of the Southern. The witness filled statistical tables showing the results of operation on all the various lines of his road in Virginia for the year ended June 30, 1905, and he explained some of the items briefly.

Coming back to station expenses, testified to on the previous day, Mr. Plant said upon reflection he destred to correct his testimony, and that instead of using $200,000 as station earnings in computing the coet of earning a dollar at such stations, he should have used $124,000. The latter, he said, was the amount which actually went into the treasury of the company from this source.

Witness was questioned as to the ownorship of the various lines in Virginia, operated by his road, and he told what he knew of this subject.

Now the lawyer went into the question of rates at Danville, and the witness was asked if his company had not been able

Mr. Braxton said he did not wish to burden the company, but he greatly de-sired the information.

From Different Sides.

From Different Sides.

The lawyer and witness discussed the alleged difficulties of the proposed task at some length, the former being unable to understand how it could entail so much cost and labor.

Witness contended that to compile the information desired would mean the going over of all the way-bills for the entire year. He promised, however, to do the best he could to furnish it.

Mr. Plant submitted some statistics in answer to a question by Mr. Braxton on the previous day, showing that for the month of May, 1908, the Chesapeako and Ohio operated over the tracks of the Southern, between Orange and Alexandria, 201 freights north and south, and 132 passenger trains north and south, and 132 passenger trains north and south, commissioner Stuart questioned the witness at some length on the subject of switching charges, and Mr. Braxton, who had said he was about to conclude his cross-examination, was meanwhile carefully examining his notes.

Classes of Freight.

Classes of Freight. Mr. Braxton reminded the witness of some other statistics he had been re-quested to file, and the latter said they quested to file, and the latter said they would be forthcoming.

Witness gave a list of the various classes of freight and the tennage of each handled by his read in Virginia during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1905.
The total tennage was 3,443,874.
Mr. Them now took the witness, Mr. Braxton having announced that he was through, and the attorney for the company questioned him during the remainder of the day.

the State's side he was assisted by Mr. Williams.

Mr. Thom further questioned Mr. Plant on re-examination, as to the rule of the company as to certain charges in its accounting department, and witness was asked for many statistics on this subject. He was requested to give the gross earnings for each year since the organization of his road, along with operating expenses, etc., but these tables having hitherto been put in evidence, have already been printed. Mr. Plant held in his hand a large sheet from which he read, and he went over in minute detail much matter already testified to on his examination in chief. Mr. Thom, having completed his examination of Mr. Plant at 4:50 o'clock P. M., the commission at that hour adjourned until Monday at 11 o'clock, when the Norfolk and Western will be heard.

Sad Ending of Career of a Noted Norfolk Sporting Man.

Norfolk Sporting Man.

Within the silent walls of the State pentientiary is a man who has been in his time one of the most famous sporting men in Virginia. His name is Simon Capps, well known among the sporting people of the Btate, and one who, up to a few years ago, had all kinds of friends among the sporting fraternity.

Somehow, Capps seems to have "overplayed his hand," and is now a wanderer on the face of the earth, without friends, money or health. He shot a railway conductor some years, ago, and through influential friends succeeded in employing strong counsel, and he thus escaped the pen. This time, however, Capps was "down and out," He had no friends and "down and out," He had no friends and out," He had no friends and the pen.
